The contest was as close as the score indicates, and both sides played fast ball. Notre Dame's two runs were made in the third. Ide allowed two men bases on balls and a short hit brought in a score. Salmon found the ball for two long hits during the game, one of which was responsible for a run. Purdue was unable to hit Higgins until the eighth, when but for Ide allowing the second baseman to catch him napping the local nine should have tied the score. Purdue's strong showing was a surprise, for Notre Dame expected to win by a big score. Cohen's long drive in the eighth scored Purdue's only run. AGAINST BAD WEATHER.

$25,000-Inferior Ball Cause of Lame Arms-Ball Gossip.

The American Association has adopted a plan that may prove beneficial to some of the clubs in the organization, in view of the fact that the weather in most cities this spring has caused the loss of thousands of dollars. The association directors, with the consent of every club in the organization, ordered a certain percentage of all receipts to be paid into a fund for the protection of all clubs in the association. Many of the clubs have lost heavily this season, but none has yet called upon President Hickey for a loan from the special fund. This fund was created for mutual protection, and in case a club needs money it can borrow from the fund by giving collateral security and paying 6 per cent. interest, a sum to tide it over a few weeks of same as any other loan. The association provided this fund in order to make it possible for clubs in immediate need of money to draw from the association instead of borrowing from a bank. It is considered a most worthy plan and will provide against any club being embarrassed in case of bad weather causing heavy losses for a few weeks. The attendance in the Western cities during the trip of the Eastern clubs concluded last week was very small, on account of the Two-base hits-Delehanty (2). Sacrifice hits | bad weather, and every club lost money -Selbach, Clarke. Double plays-Coughlin In the northern cities the Indianapolis base on balls-Off Lee, 2. The miserable schedule arranged for the American Association by President Hickey for 1903 will cost the American Association over $25,000 this season. It is safe to say that another schedule of the 1903 kind will never again be forced on the association. Hickey made a mistake by having the weather in the West and North is generally cold and rainy the last of April and early May, and it would have been much better to have the Western clubs open in the East. When the first series of the Western clubs in the East was finished then the Eastern clubs would begin their series among themselves and the Western clubs would do the same. This would bring the Decoration ay games in the East and West instead of in the West, as this year's schedule provided. President Hickey West for the first holiday. There is more observance of Decoration day in Indianapolis, Toledo, Columbus and Louisville than in any of the Western cities. In the Western cities stores were kept open on Decoration day. St. Paul and Minneapolis were both scheduled at home this year on Decoration day, and four clubs had to divide the receipts of the day in the two cities. Minneapolis and St. Paul should be scheduled together for that day and the morning game played in one of the cities and the afternoon game in the other city. In this way the two teams would derive the benefit of the holiday and the big crowds. Nearly every club in the Association has registered a very strong kick against the schedule and President Hickey knows it will not be safe to prepare another schedule like the 1903. The fact that about twenty pitchers in the American Association are laid up with sore arms is well known, but the wrong cause has been attributed to their condition. It has been said that the cold weather has caused the pitchers to register on the hospital list. The weather might have had something to do with their condition, but the principal cause of the lame arms is the poor ball that is being used in the American Association this season. Indianapolis pitchers who have been laid up this year, and every one has been in the "sore-arm brigade" some time during the season, say the ball used this year should never have been adopted by the Association. The balls are not uniform in size, weight or condition of the cover, and this has caused the sore arms. A pitcher will start the game with one ball, and after pitching awhile with it another ball may be put into play that is heavier or lighter than the first one. In a short time the pitcher strains his arm, and is a subject for the hospital. Just why the ball being used was adopted is not known only Association of Minor Leagues and use an inferior ball will cost each club in the Association at least $2,000 this year. American Association teams were supposed to be cut to thirteen men on June 1, but the Indianapolis club and several others are carrying fourteen men. The Indianager Watkins will not take chances on crippling his team by releasing one of the pitchers and carrying only four box men. The experience so far this season has proved that the team would be weak with only four men, and this is the result of that bad ball. It is believed that if a good ball had been adopted the clubs could get along with thirteen men, but with an inferior ball bases-New York, 4; Cleveland, 6.
